VULNERABLE PERSON REGISTRY

WHAT IS THE VULNERABLE PERSON REGISTRY?

The Vulnerable Person Registry allows an improved police response to vulnerable people who may require emergency assistance due to their condition. It expedites the process of locating and assisting vulnerable residents or frequent visitors to York Region by making essential personal information readily available to responding officers.

The Vulnerable Person Registry is a completely free service.

WHO IS ELIGIBLE FOR THE REGISTRY?

A vulnerable person is a person who has a cognitive, physical, intellectual/developmental disability or other condition which may place them at an increased risk of misadventure leading to injury or death and who may require assistance from emergency services. These conditions may include:

- A tendency to wander
- The inability to communicate
- Fascinations or attractions to dangerous locations (water, construction sites etc.)
- Unusual social responses (fear of strangers, aggressive nature)

Other requirements:

In order to be eligible for the registry, the vulnerable person must also:

- Reside, attend school, work or otherwise regularly visit York Region
- Provide confirmation of identity and authenticity of the personal information provided

York Regional Police needs your help to ensure vulnerable people are reunited with their families.
